Dear Mr. Walker:

You should not let PaveItAll pave over the woodlands. The woodlands are home to many living things and the woodlands are important to the environment. Paving over the woodlands is not a good idea.

There are many plants and animals in the woodlands that you would harm if you let PaveItAll pave over the woodlands. You would hurt bear, deer, fox, owls, squirrels, and other animals. You wouldn't like it if people destroyed your home, so why would you let PaveItAll destroy the animals that live in the woodlands' home? There are also insects in the woodlands. You would be harming crickets and ants if you let PaveItAll pave over the woodlands. Moss, vines, berries, maple trees, oak trees, aspen trees, and pine trees are some of the trees you would harm.

The woodlands are important to the environment. The trees of the woodland give out oxygen and they take in carbon dioxide. Without trees and plants humans could not live on this wonderful planet. Trees and plants also help bugs and animals survive in the woodlands.

Those reasons, the woodlands are important to many living things and the woodlands are an important part to the environment, are why you should decline PaveItAll's request to pave over the woodlands.

Sincerely,

Jack D
